J. Marangos : Consistency and Viability of Islamic Economic Systems and the Transition Process before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Consistency and Viability of Islamic Economic Systems and the Transition Process:

Consistency and Viability of Islamic Economics Systems and the Transition Process outlines the transition problem for non-market economies and creates an analytic framework for understanding the cause and effect of these economies.

"A major voice in development economics, Marangos provides a unique analysis with this book. Consistency and Viability of Islamic Economic Systems and the Transition Process is not just about Islamic economic systems; it takes up the experience of Eastern-European transitions. With a more complex perspective on the economics of transition, Marangos builds a general methodological frame to analyse political-economic systems in terms of consistency and viability. An integrated approach to development, transition, and systems analysis, applied to Islamic economics." - Wolfram Elsner, Professor, University of Bremen, Germany and President, European Association for Evolutionary Political Economy (EAEPE) "In a world fraught with deep-seated misunderstandings, John Marangos sheds needed light upon what could be aptly referred to as an Islamic economic system. With many systemic contradictions mediated and resolved by principled religious doctrine, Marangos skillfully elaborates this 'third' approach that in numerous respects outshines neoliberal capitalism and what existed as planned socialism. This is comparative economics at its best. Marangos' insights need to be carefully studied and then considered." - John Hall, Professor of Economics and International Studies, Portland State University, USA; and Research Professor, Halle Institute for Economic Research, USA
