From Palgrave Macmillan : Toward Well-Oiled Relations?: China's Presence in the Middle East following the Arab Spring (The Nottingham China Policy Institute Series) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Toward Well-Oiled Relations?: China's Presence in the Middle East following the Arab Spring (The Nottingham China Policy Institute Series):

With China replacing the United States as the world's leading energy user and net oil importer, its relations with the Middle East is becoming a major issue with global implications. Horesh and his contributors set out to analyse the implications of China's growing presence in the Middle East.

About the Author Niv Horesh is Professor (Chair) and Director of the China Policy Institute at the University of Nottingham, UK. He has published numerous books and articles on global business, economic history and international relations. Before embarking on his academic career, Horesh worked as China consultant for the Australian government. He published Asian Thought on China's Changing International Relations with Palgrave Macmillan in 2014.
