By Helen Rozanova
In November 2014 I was lucky to attend a workshop on trends by David and Delia in Milan (ICSC conference). It was clear then that the approach of spotting trends and delivering innovative ideas is of high importance not only to shopping centre industry but to everyone who wants to be successful with their customers. This book is clear explanation of how one can start working towards this. It will definitely be one of the main resources in my work and often recommended to clients and colleagues.

Worth the read. Gives helpful insight into how and what to consider while contemplating/developing new products or ideas. That's followed up with "templates/maps" as helpful tools.
